

Freedom on My Mind Teacher's Resources

Freedom on My Mind for the AP Course, Updated 3e is the groundbreaking, first textbook written for the AP® African American Studies course. New authors Alysha Butler and Rachel Williams-Giordano bring their extensive classroom and AP® leader experience to empower students to explore the rich tapestry of African American experiences through AP® course-aligned units. Students are invited to connect historical and cultural developments, and to develop source analysis and argumentation skills with AP® Working with Sources document collections, AP® Skill Workshops, and integrated AP® Exam practice. This edition builds learners' confidence and competence, offering ample opportunities to master AP® skills crucial for success in the course, on the exam, and in the course project. With Freedom on My Mind, students are not only prepared for exams, but also encouraged and equipped to understand and appreciate the diverse narratives that shape our world.

Teacher's Edition

Available in print and digitally via Achieve, the Teacher's Edition of Freedom on My Mind for the AP® Course, Updated 3rd Ed. is written to help guide instructors in their course planning and teaching with a wealth of additional wraparound features. This edition includes thoughtful instruction for planning, pacing, differentiating, and enlivening your AP® African American Studies course.

Teacher's Resource Materials (Digital-Only, Available with Achieve)

Our Teacher's Resource Materials include:

- Glossary/glosario flash cards to help students build their content knowledge.
- Pacing and AP® Alignment Guides for each unit and chapter. These customizable versions of the pacing and alignment guides in this Teacher's Edition allow you the flexibility to tailor instructional content to your classroom community.
- Handouts for activities found throughout the Teacher's Edition— it's easy to use these as bell ringers, exit tickets, or homework.
- Lesson Plans for each chapter of the book, created by student edition authors Alysha Butler and Rachel Williams-Giordano, offer new avenues of inquiry into key concepts, developments, and processes of the AP® course.

- Suggested Responses to all of the AP[®] Unit Warmup questions in the AP[®] Unit Introductions, the AP[®] Skills—Applying Disciplinary Knowledge questions in the margins, image caption questions, Chapter Review questions, Practicing AP[®] Skills questions in the AP[®] Working with Sources collections, and Activities in the AP[®] Skills Workshops.
- AP[®] Exam Practice Answer Keys, including answer choice rationales, for all of the multiple-choice questions in the book's AP[®] Exam Practice sections.
- Rubrics for the Short-Answer Questions and Document-Based Questions in the book's AP[®] Exam Practice sections.
- Lecture and Image Presentation Slides to help you get the most out of this program.
- Professional Development Chapter Overview Videos by student edition authors Alysha Butler and Rachel Williams-Giordano to help you plan and pace your course, chapter by chapter.
- A Teacher's Edition Tour Video by Teacher's Edition author Antoinette Dempsey-Waters to help you get the most from this resource.
- LearningCurve, an adaptive, game-like, formative assessment tool that helps students focus their study efforts where they need it most. When they get a question wrong, they get feedback about why and a link to content review — and then they get a chance to try again.
